

- Prototype - available using classes, sets a method once and gives every object of a class access to that method. Several methods can be set on a classes prototype.
- Constructors - Allows creation of many objects of the same object type, which helps simplify code and reduce clutter. Adding methods to an object must be done inside a constructor function.